Where the idea came from?

- In 2008, during the financial crises the entire world was affected by the financial turmoil.

“I had a vision”

- Yves Lagarde had an idea about a totally new way of credit system : PID came to light.
- The Product Interest decomposed was designed in order to change the traditional relationship between financial institutions and investors for a credit operations.

Financial Pain

- The financial crises shattered not just the economy but also the entire financial institutions, for which they are still coming to terms with. Individuals and companies with limited available sources urgently need credit but without lenders lending money, these businesses often have no alternatives but to reduce workforce or close down.

Solution

Genesyl Finance Afrique

PID, an innovative approach to what will surely be the credit system of tomorrow.

Financial Engineering

- Under the impetus of GENESYL Finance, financial engineers, mathematicians and computer scientists have worked closely to identify the mechanisms of loans and their associated economic contexts. They have conceived, designed and developed the mathematical formulas that are the heart of this new financial model.
